HEENZO (REGISTERED NAME FOR HEAN'S ESSENCE)

THE GREAT MONEY-SAVING REMEDY FOR Coughs, Colds, Croup, Catarrh,

AND OTHER CHEST & THROAT TROUBLES.

The cost of cough mixture usually amounts to a considerable sum in the average family; but it need not necessarily do so, as anyone can, in a few moments, make a fine quality Cough, Cold, and Sore Throat Remedy as money can buy. All that has to be done to make a pint of mixture is to obtain a bottle of HEENZO (Hean's Essence), and dilute it with water and sweeten according to easy directions printed on the label. A pint of ordinary remedies would cost at least 12s. HEENZO (Hean's Essence) costs only 2s. (by post, 2s. 3d.), and is obtainable from all leading chemists and stores.

RECOMMENDED BY NURSES AND USED IN HOSPITALS

Over 4000 Testimonials

have been received from users all over Australia, stating that HEENZO (Hean's Essence) is the finest remedy ever used by them for Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Sore Throats, and other affections of chest and throat. Among the writers are many nurses.

NURSE HANDLEY, of Regent-street, Kogarah, President of the Roselle Red Cross Society, writes:—
"I must commend you upon having placed on the market such an excellent throat and chest remedy as Heanzo (Hean's Essence). I have lately put it to very thorough tests, and am pleased to say its efficacy is unquestionable. I can, and do, with all confidence, recommend Heanzo to anyone who needs a thoroughly reliable cough remedy."

NURSE BRADLEY, of Adelaide-parade, Woolahra, has written:—
"I was suffering from a bad cold in the head, and was persuaded to try Heanzo (Hean's Essence). It gave me prompt relief, and I think it is a splendid preventive against the serious effects which often follow a severe cold."

MATRON G. F. COLES, Superintendent of St. Margaret's Intermediary Hospital, Main North-road, Enfield, South Australia, having convinced herself of the medicinal merits of HEENZO (Hean's Essence), writes:—
"Having subjected Heanzo (Hean's Essence) to a thorough trial, both personally and with two of my patients, I am pleased to state that I found it to be an excellent remedy. I think it is an excellent blessing, as well as a financial saving to parents with families who are subject to colds and kindred ailments. You may use my name as you think fit, as one who uses and recommends your preparation. I have brought the value of Heanzo under the notice of several nurses in adjacent suburbs, and they have used it with satisfaction. I wish your Essence the success it deserves."

THE ADVENTURES OF MARMADUKE CLEGG IN THE YEAR 1688.

BY MORICE GERARD.

CHAPTER XVI.—Continued.
I could still hear the stentorian breathing through the wall, and I felt sure I had heard it too. He was certainly listening as intently as I was myself.

For the first time I was tempted to run through in cold blood, and I felt sure I had heard it too. He was certainly listening as intently as I was myself.

It was a remarkable circumstance that, through all this excitement and stress, the vision of my dreams had been placed at the back of my mind. I, the most practical and balanced of men, to be the playing of dramatics. What had happened to me to bring this about?

The lights shone through the doorway. Once I turned, but this time I kept my eyes on the back before me. I would not again give Dink a chance to rise.

Perhaps he, too, knew that his fate hung in the balance. In the doorway appeared Dink and Cox-wain Parrant. The latter gripped the sound arm of Trevellin, who covered, faint and bleeding from the wound, holding himself back as far as possible.

I was in a bath of perspiration; but at length, breathless, I saw Dink and Cox-wain Parrant. The latter gripped the sound arm of Trevellin, who covered, faint and bleeding from the wound, holding himself back as far as possible.

CHAPTER XVII.
IN IRONS.
Dink, holding up the lantern, surveyed the scene. It took him a minute or so to take in the situation. Dink lay at full length in the shadow cast by the doorway.

As soon as Mark saw him he sprang to my side. "No devil came," he cried. "Yes, and fell into the trap I set for him." Dink growled, and made as if he would turn over. I sprang him with my foot. "Keep still," I commanded, and picked him up again with my weapon. He growled and lay like a log.

At my suggestion Dink took the rope and bound the mate at wrists and ankles. When this was accomplished I stood up. Parrant had not uttered a word nor moved a step forward. He had only gripped "Foxy" Trevellin the tighter. Now he spoke for the first time.

"So this is what you two were plotting," he bellowed. "I told the captain to keep you good when I saw you two heads together, but he refused to believe me."

Dink and the Captain had made many voyages together, and he trusted him. As to Foxy, no one trusted him. But Wellow thought him too white-livered to do serious business.

Now we all heard that heavy breathing from beyond the passage. Parrant knew well enough where it came from. "The Captain!" he cried. "What have they done to him?" Flinging Trevellin into my arms he rushed out of the doorway.

In a trice Dink had cut off the end of the rope which bound the mate, and together we sprang Trevellin in the same fashion. By this time he was unconscious from loss of blood.

We lifted him into the hammock, and Dink, carrying the lantern, was run to the captain's cabin. Parrant could find his way in the dark, and already he was by the side of Wellow's bunk, feeling him over to ascertain what had happened.

The light displayed the details of our astonished eyes. Wellow lay bound and gagged, strapped to his bunk by cords over his middle and legs. His bloodshot eyes glared at us. He did not seem to know whether we were friends or foes.

A few strokes of our hands set him free, and the drift of the coxswain under the bandage which had been thrust into his mouth and tied at the back of his head. Even then Captain Wellow groined in front of him with his hands and did not understand what we said.

"Dink!" he bellowed, and they all lay for it to the last farthing. "We will land them in Holland, where the Prince's provost-marshal will know how to deal with them," I remarked. I had not forgotten that other story, ten years ago, when Dink had been in the stocks.

"It should like to string them both up now, just to teach them a lesson, and to encourage any other white-livered scoundrels there may be in the ship," said the captain. "But I suppose we must wait the captain's orders."

"He will say as I do, let them be put aboard and landed there," we were too prejudiced to be judges as well.

Even as I spoke I was conscious of an influence pervading me, which was wholly foreign to my nature hitherto. A month ago I could have been as cowardly as a cat, but now I was a different man.

"The first thing," Dink said, "is to clap them into irons. Those ropes won't hold them for long. Probably 'Foxy' Trevellin is biting the mate's ankles already."

At the suggestion we all rushed back along the passage to the den where we had left the prisoners. We were just in time.

"I should like to string them both up now, just to teach them a lesson, and to encourage any other white-livered scoundrels there may be in the ship," said the captain. "But I suppose we must wait the captain's orders."

"LES HUGUENOTS."

The performance of Meyerbeer's "Gli Ugonotti," better known under the French title, "Les Huguenots," by the Donizetti Italian Opera Company on Saturday night, was something more than the revival of a work which has been "old and new" here since the days of William Swain. By a happy accident of fortune the occasion was one of surprise and gratification to many, marking as it did the almost miraculous transformation of the Hippodrome into a well-equipped opera house, satisfactory in regard to its soundings properties.

Signor Balloni opened in the charming scene and romance in which he sang the praises of the lady of his thoughts, and dreams, "L'Amour par delà le ciel," an angelic voice, to the delight of the audience.

"MARY GOES FIRST."

In "Mary Goes First," players at the Criterion Theatre found themselves in a novel atmosphere, that of the narrow English streets of London. This, according to Henry Arthur Jones, is the possible for rival leaders to break up a dinner party by spilling the contents of a bottle of champagne over the two ladies concerned reduces her antagonist to helpless confusion and tears.

RUSSIAN RETREAT.

TROOPS REFUSE TO FIGHT.

ENEMY APPROACHING TARNOPOL.

LONDON, July 22. Owing to some of the Russian troops refusing to obey commands the German and Austrian forces have been forced to retreat in Galicia, causing the Russian lines to fall back. The extent of the disaster is not yet known, but the enemy claims to be approaching Tarnopol, which is about 25 miles east of the spot where the break-through occurred. Following are the communications:

RUSSIAN.

FRIDAY, ISSUED 5 P.M.

There is lively activity in the direction of Vilna.

The enemy persistently attacked 20 miles south of Brzdy. At first all his attacks were repulsed, but one regiment, between Brzdy and Manajow, left the trenches and voluntarily retired. As a result the neighbouring units were forced to retire to develop his success.

Our failure was largely due to the influence of the extremists. Several detachments, being ordered to support their comrades, held meetings and discussed the advisability of obeying the order. Some refused to obey. The efforts of the commanders and of the committees were fruitless.

The Austrians and Germans occupied a portion of our first line eastward of Brzdy, and also Hindik, westward of Brzdy. The enemy took the offensive on the 17th, and captured a height southward of Novin. Our cavalry and infantry drove back the enemy and restored the position. SUNDAY, ISSUED 4.45 P.M.

The enemy's artillery fire is intense south-westward of Brzdy.

The enemy has made a further offensive in the direction of Tarnopol. Our troops, lacking stability and not obeying commands, continued to retire and caused us to abandon certain positions.

We repulsed several attacks in the region of Novin, south of the Dniester. The enemy occupied heights north-eastward of the village.

The enemy attacked at the confluence of the Dniester and the Sereb, a Romanian counter-attack restored the situation.

GERMAN.

FRIDAY, ISSUED 4.55 P.M.

We advanced between the Sereb and Zolota Lipa through three strong zones. The enemy suffered sanguinary losses, and retreated in disorder. We captured a few thousand prisoners. There is increased activity at Jasowat, Dniester, Smorzon, and on the Sereb. We repulsed the Russians near Novin.

FRIDAY, ISSUED 11 P.M.

Between the Sereb and the Strypa rivers we are closely pursuing the retreating enemy.

SATURDAY, ISSUED 4.25 P.M.

Pursuing the Russians we crossed the Zolota-Lipka road on both sides of Jasowat on a front of 25 miles.

The Russians are burning the villages and causing great destruction. Further fighting is expected.

The Austro-Hungarians repulsed their positions northward of Hreznay lost on July 1.

Lessons attacks on the Dniester broke down. We drove out the enemy from Brzdy and stormed high positions at Novin.

Artillery fire has increased on the Sereb and in the Brzdy sector.

The Russians and Romanians are more active in the Lower Sereb.

SATURDAY, ISSUED 10.45 P.M.

Our troops are before Tarnopol.

AUSTRIAN.

SATURDAY, ISSUED 10.40 P.M.

The Austrians and Germans, pursuing the Russians beyond Jasowat (22 miles west of Tarnopol), Jasowat (12 miles north of Tarnopol), and Sereb (16 miles north by west of Tarnopol).

HOLLAND AND BRITAIN.

The "Reinische Westphalische" says that as soon as Holland is certain that the British destroyers seized the four German steamers within the three-mile limit she will demand their surrender.

A message from the Hague says it is officially announced that the Dutch Minister in London has been instructed to call attention to the seriousness of the action taken against German merchantmen in Dutch territorial waters and to express a hope that Britain will give due and complete satisfaction in accordance with international law.

Instructions to the Dutch Minister in London describe the action of the British warships as an unmistakable violation of Holland's sovereignty and neutrality.

It is officially stated that Holland demands satisfaction for the recent action against four German steamers while in Dutch territorial waters.

THE TALK OF PEACE.

The Rome correspondent of the "New York Times" says it is apparently certain that the Pope will appeal for peace on the third anniversary of the outbreak of the war. There is good reason to believe that, instead of a general exhortation to all the warring nations, the Pope will aim at mediation between two nations at a time when the war is at its fiercest.

Such a suggestion, clearly, would allude to the United States and Austria.

Reports received by the Vatican indicate that the Turkish Premier is expected to return to make way for a National Cabinet of Liberals who are in favour of peace.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, N.P. Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railwaymen, speaking at Salisbury, urged the Government to trust the people. The workers had shown their willingness to sacrifice in order to make the nation a more united front.

Mr. Thomas demanded that the Government should make way for a National Cabinet of Liberals who are in favour of peace.

KERENSKY TO LEAD RUSSIA.

GERMAN INTRIGUES.

CAUSE OF RECENT DISORDER.

LONDON, July 22.

The "Bourse Gazette" (Petrograd) announces several Government changes.

The present Minister for War, M. Kerensky, is to succeed Prince Lvov.

A report from Petrograd on Saturday night says that M. Kerensky has been appointed to the country's soldiers and sailors.

It is stated that the cause of the recent disturbances is the outcome of a German plot.

He particularly urges a cessation of the chaotic state of the Baltic fleet, which may end disastrously if the enemy fleet should attack the coast.

The Petrograd correspondent of the Dutch paper "Hollandische" says that proofs have been obtained that the German Legation in Stockholm had been aware of the German plot.

SUCCESS FOR THE FRENCH.

GREAT ENEMY ATTACK SHATTERED.

LONDON, July 22.

M. Marcel Huin, the French war critic, says: One of the most desperate battles, and probably the most merciless, of the war has terminated south-east of Cerny, in an uncontestable victory for the French infantry and a sanguinary defeat for the Brandenburg Guards. Hoops of enemy dead testify to his phenomenal losses.

The communiques describe bitter fighting around Cerny, on the Aisne section of the French front. There is remarkable artillery activity in Flanders, near the coast.

FRENCH.

FRIDAY, ISSUED 5.15 P.M.

The struggle continues most violent in the region of Hurlbise and Craonne. The German made renewed attacks late at night. After powerful artillery concentration the enemy last evening important forces along the line of our plateau between Craonne and Vaucouleurs. Hand-to-hand fighting occurred on the whole front, which our troops defended with magnificent courage. Their resistance and tenacity, however, the most furious assaults. We entirely maintained our positions everywhere. The enemy, despite heavy sacrifices, did not obtain a footing on either Calvaire Plateau or Casement's Plateau, nor on our positions to the west. The ground in front of our lines was covered with the bodies of the enemy.

The newspapers continue to testify to the violence of the struggle and the sanguinary defeat of the enemy.

German attempts to extend their slight advantage gained yesterday between Craonne and Casement's Plateau were equally vain. However, our energetic counter-attacks enabled us to surround a pocket into which the enemy had penetrated.

We hold the entire crest of the plateau. The enemy still retains a space of 600 yards, and is clinging to the northern edge of the plateau, where were our first line positions, which the bombardment completely destroyed. We took a score of German prisoners.

SATURDAY, ISSUED 4.30 P.M.

Enemy attacks, or attempted attacks, continued very violent bombardments on many points in the sectors of Cerny, Hurlbise, and Craonne, and north of Brye-la-Loutre; but our accurate fire and the vigilance of our troops caused the German plans to fail.

The enemy's attack was carried out in force south-east of Cerny. It was repulsed with heavy losses on a front of 200 yards, but on each occasion our vigorous counter-attacks completely drove out the enemy.

We broke up with heavy losses a powerful enemy concentration for attack between Hurlbise and Calvaire Plateau.

BRITISH.

FRIDAY, ISSUED 1.55 P.M.

We repulsed raiders north-eastward of Hurlbise. The usual military activity prevails.
